

CV of ASSMN 2024 Invited Faculty

Ming-Chih Ho

Country

Taiwan

Position & Organization

Professor, Department of Surgery, National Taiwan University College of Medicine and Director, Department of Surgery, National Taiwan University Hospital Hsin-Chu Branch

Major Field

Liver cancer, Liver Transplantation, Diagnostic imaging for liver diseases

Short Bio (in 300 words)

Ming-Chih Ho received his M.D. degree from National Taiwan University, School of Medicine, and his Ph.D. degree in Surgery from the Institute of Clinical Medicine, National Taiwan University College of Medicine. He completed his surgical training at the Department of Surgery, National Taiwan University Hospital, and pursued visiting fellowships in liver transplantation at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center and the University of California, San Francisco Medical Center. Currently, he serves as a Professor in the Department of Surgery at the National Taiwan University College of Medicine and National Taiwan University Hospital. Additionally, he holds the position of director of the Surgical Department at National Taiwan University Hospital Hsin-Chu Branch. His clinical expertise lies in the management of liver cancer, cholangiocarcinoma, liver transplantation, and abdominal diagnostic imaging. Dr. Ho's current research interests primarily focus on hepatobiliary cancer, liver transplantation, and hepatobiliary imaging.